No.

But you know, they have a point. Or rather, bras have several. I mean, that didn't come out the way it was in my head.

You are preaching to the choir, sister.

I usually don't even bother, under a vest, but I realize that not everybody has my advantages in that department. I dunno how the boobular girls do it.

Or maybe they don't go into law enforcement. You realize you've got the best rack on the team?

What are you talking about? She's got the only rack on the team.

...Oh, wait. Is it sexual harassment when I say it?

...Yes. Yes it is.

And trust me, you don't want to make me take retaliatory measures re: the endowment of my male co-workers.

(It's also gonna be my pink slip when Mom comes out and asks me why I'm under the desk crying with laughter.)

So don't go buying it for yourself.

I might even let you borrow it sometimes. That is, if I were to happen to have one.

Birthday, birthday, who's got the birthday?

Oh, she's not so bad. That space alien in the cape has turned her head, is all.

When I decided to be born in February, I must not have realized I'd own a motorcycle. Winter storms play hell with...

Too soon?

Is this conversation grounds for workplace harassment? Not my half of it, of course.

That's not true; Mom has a bosom.*

*Not my observation. Platypus noted it--spirit of scientific accuracy--then thought better of posting it. For purposes of day job, one's boss does not have cleavage.

Outstanding idea, and I'm shocked that it took someone this long to think of it.

I recently read a novel where a woman is captured and disarmed by The Bad Guys™, and she takes the underwires out of her bra and uses them to take out of the guards, although with great difficulty and desperation.

Fortunately for her, some of the other white hats save her from the second guard, who was, most unfortunately, outside of stabbing range but well inside 'blow your head clean off' range.

(Rules of Combat: Always work as a team, it gives the buggers someone else to shoot at.)

I find it appropriate that my underwires should stab someone other than me. :p

Yes, I suspect the author had much the same thought. I'll pass the appreciation along to her. ;)
